

UNIT DESIGN

Reflection Questions to Guide Future Work

Days One and Two

- Based on the process you experienced when planning our personal narrative unit of study, what are the ideas that you'll use when planning future units of study?

- Identify something about our process for planning that you don't yet fully understand or would like to have more help with.

Day Three

- When reflecting on your practice, assessing student work to inform teaching decisions, and planning minilessons, what are the ideas you'll use for planning in the future?

- Identify something about our process for reflecting on the above that you don't yet fully understand or would like to have more help with.